Noticing that we have fallen short of our pledge goal by about $60,000, it would be easy to start a destructive process. Negativity, pessimism, despair, blame, or even apathy are all lurking around the corner anytime an important goal is not met. Allow me to put in my two cents and make a few suggestions.

First of all, there is always a Plan B. Even if I don't know what Plan B is at the moment, there is always another option when a first plan comes up short. I have full confidence that a revised strategy will soon arise. After all, I've never seen a manmade plan that was perfectly conceived or executed on the first attempt. Maybe this plan was rushed or poorly communicated. Maybe expectations were too high or perhaps it was just a bad time on the calendar. Most likely, it is a combination of all those things that lead us to our current circumstance. In any case, give your church leadership an opportunity to revise and reassess. They have already decided to extend the pledge deadline to at least January 13th in order to allow us to pledge or to revise a pledge. Hopefully, national and seasonal circumstances will be settled down at least a little by then. It may be that more adjustments will be made as more information and input is made available. Be a positive part of that process if you have input rather than being an obstacle to it.

Second, don't overestimate the size of the problem. We are $60,000 away from our pledge goal, or about 46% short. However, our pledge goal is only about 10% of the total project. On the whole, we are about 5% short in resources for a one million dollar project. We have access to the other 95%. The project budget itself is still just an estimate, as the final blueprints have not been finished. It is entirely possible that the initial estimate will shift, and it is as likely to move in our favor as it is the other way. We really don't know yet just where this leaves us. This pledge drive was to get a preliminary sense of our ability to give based on a preliminary estimate of a preliminary building plan. So let's not jump to conclusions in any direction.

Finally, while I personally believe that a new auditorium is an integral part of facilitating future growth, the kingdom of God is not made of brick and mortar. Even if the building explodes in a fiery pillar, the government turns to violent anti-Christian secularism, and the dollar devalues to the level of the peso, the kingdom of God still stands and we still have a job to do. "Come now, you who say, 'Today or tomorrow we will go into such and such a town and spend a year there and trade and make a profit' – yet you do not know what tomorrow will bring. What is your life? For you are a mist that appears for a little time and then vanishes. Instead you ought to say, 'If the Lord wills, we will live and do this or that'" (James 4:13-15). So shall it ever be.

WHAT NEXT?

The goal thermometer on the left will be periodically updated to reflect our progress toward our Pledge goal of $131,100 toward our new auditorium. You can also view the progress on our webpage. See the cover article for some thoughts and information on this process. The deadline to return your pledge cards has been extended until after the holidays (Jan 13th).

E-MAILS

Every now and then the church office will send out an email to all members informing us of an event or service cancellation (snow/ice). An email was sent out this past Tuesday and Wednesday (about baby Tuggle) If you did not get that email that means either (1) the office does not have an email address for you, (2) it is incorrect in our computer, or (3) it came back to us undelivered. Some email accounts will think our emails are 'spam' and not something you wish to read. If you add the church's email address to your address book it will accept those emails. (This is especially true in the case of AOL users). Please let the office know if you did not receive this latest email so we can update our mailing list and keep you informed.

Thank you—Karen. (our address is office@glenpoolchurchofchrist.com)
