Three Thoughts About Ten Words

The significance to the Hebrew people of the Law of Moses cannot be overemphasized. "For from ancient generations Moses has had in every city those who proclaim him, for he is read every Sabbath in the synagogues" (Acts 15:21). The Ten Commandments set out the logic and preamble to the Law of Moses (Exodus 20:1-17). What should we know about the ten commandments? What was God trying to communicate? Why these ten? Why not others? What are the lasting lessons of what we commonly call the "Ten Commandments"?

First, we should notice that they are statements, more than commands. For example, notice that verse three does not say, "Do not have any other gods," as a command, but rather, "You shall have no other gods before me," as a statement of fact. The ten "words" (v. 1) form the contract of the Covenant. They explain as a matter of fact who God's people would be in this covenant. The thunder at the top of the mountain reinforced the message (v. 18-21). These were non-negotiable decrees, not guidelines or suggestions.

Second, we should notice that the ten statements have an internal logic. They begin with a statement of God's identity (v. 2), and then the first three statements show how God is to be known:

- I. To you there are no other gods
- II. No idols
- III. No lifting up the name of YHWH to emptiness

Statements four and five form a transition. These two rules show how God's identity will begin to shape Israel's way of life.

- IV. Remember the Sabbath and keep it separate (holy)
- V. Honor Father and Mother

The remaining five statements end with how to treat others. Israel's relationship to others was built upon its relationship to God.

- VI. No murder
- VII. No stealing
- VIII. No adultery
- IX. No bearing false witness
- X. Do not covet

Third, we should notice the strong connection between God's identity in the beginning and human relationships at the end. How we relate to one another is inseparable from how we relate to God, "for he who does not love his brother whom he has seen cannot love God whom he has not seen" (1 John 4:20). Righteousness begins at the top, in knowing God. From God proceeds all right living. Sin tends to work its way up the ten commandments from the bottom. It begins with misplaced desire, and ends with a rejection of God altogether.

Our relationship to the ten words (or ten commandments) is different than that of Israel, but we can still learn much from them. They are the rules that shaped the life of Jesus whom we imitate, and so they are indispensable for our lives today.

From The Imitation of Christ

“He follows Me, walks not in darkness,” says the Lord. By these words of Christ we are advised to imitate His life and habits, if we wish to be truly enlightened and free from all blindness of heart. Let our chief effort, therefore, be to study the life of Jesus Christ.

The teaching of Christ is more excellent than all the advice of the saints, and he who has His spirit will find in it a hidden manna. Now, there are many who hear the Gospel often but care little for it because they have not the spirit of Christ. Yet whoever wishes to understand fully the words of Christ must try to pattern his whole life on that of Christ.

What good does it do to speak learnedly about the Trinity if, lacking humility, you displease the Trinity? Indeed it is not learning that makes a man holy and just, but a virtuous life makes him pleasing to God. I would rather feel contrition than know how to define it. For what would it profit us to know the whole Bible by heart and the principles of all the philosophers if we live without grace and the love of God? Vanity of vanities and all is vanity, except to love God and serve Him alone.

This is the greatest wisdom -- to seek the kingdom of heaven through contempt of the world. It is vanity, therefore, to seek and trust in riches that perish. It is vanity also to court honor and to be puffed up with pride. It is vanity to follow the lusts of the body and to desire things for which severe punishment later must come. It is vanity to wish for long life and to care little about a well-spent life. It is vanity to be concerned with the present only and not to make provision for things to come. It is vanity to love what passes quickly and not to look ahead where eternal joy abides.

Often recall the proverb: “The eye is not satisfied with seeing nor the ear filled with hearing.” Try, moreover, to turn your heart from the love of things visible and bring yourself to things invisible. For they who follow their own evil passions stain their consciences and lose the grace of God.

by Thomas à Kempis

Let our chief effort, therefore, be to study the life of Jesus Christ.
